NEW ORLEANS.

To the politeness of a friend we are indebted for the "Moniteur de la Louisiana" of the 2d of April, from which is taken the following account of the reception of Citizen Laussat, Colonial Prefect at the city of New Orleans—The Consular Arret, defining the powers of the captain General, Colonial Prefect and Commissary of Justice, clearly proves the cession of the province of Louisiana by the kingdom of Spain to the French Republic. Citizen Laussat, in his capacity of Colonial Prefect, has virtually taken possession of the province. How far the recent orders of the court of Spain to reinstate the United States in their right of Deposit at New Orleans, will be respected by Prefect Laussat, will soon be demonstrated. The Prefect's proclamation, which lately appeared in public prints has also been received. The translation of this ranting proclamation, as already published is in substance perfectly correct.

By private correspondent we understand that the prefect has declared that his Court had no knowledge of the occlusion of the port of New Orleans; on the contrary, had he arrived before this event, it should not have taken place. It is presumed that every facility to an amicable intercourse with the upper settlements, will be extended by the prefect.

(N. Y. D. Adv.)

Reception of Citizen LAUSSAT Colonial Prefect of the French Colony of Louisiana, at New Orleans.

Translated from the Supplement to the Moniteur de Louisiana.

New Orleans, Saturday 2d April.

The Governor of Louisiana dispatched his eldest son, Captain Don Manuel and M. Caldron, sub-lieutenant, to meet Citizen Laussat, Colonial Prefect. The Intendant on his part sent, Don Raphael Ramos, Commissary of War, in the Custom House tender. Citizen Laussat, ascended the river in the Government Bark, and entered the city on Saturday last, the 26th of March at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. He landed at the Governor's under a discharge of the artillery of the forts.

The colonial Prefect was attended by his etat-major, the Officers of the garrison and of the place, together with the principal civil and ecclesiastical characters.

From thence the Prefect went to the house of M. Bernard Marigny, which had been prepared for his reception.

Shortly after, the Governor, attended by a large retinue waited on him.

On Sunday and for several succeeding days, the prefect received the visits of the public officers and principal inhabitants.

He testified, on all occasions, the decisive intention of the French government to promote the prosperity and happiness of this colony, to support good order, to maintain in full force the law respecting the condition of individuals, to protect religious worship without any change in its establishment, to respect every treaty with neighbouring powers, and to carefully cherish with them the ties and amity of confidence.

He announced that the Captin General with the troops of the expedition had, in all probability, sailed from Batavia, about the last of Jan. and that they would arrive in this colony about the middle of April. He spoke of the character and views of the Captain General in such a light, as to render his arrival most ardently expected.

The Colonial Prefect spent the rest of the week in visiting the public edifices and magazines, and in making, in concert with the Governor, the necessary preparations for the support and lodings of the expected forces.

The Government and Custom House dispatch boats returned to the Detour Anglois (English Turn) to bring Madame Laussat and her daughters; who arrived at the Prefecture on Sunday evening.

The Intendant united his exertions with those of the Governor to afford Citizen Laussat, the Colonial Prefect, a reception due the Government which sent him from the Government which received him.

Next follows the Prefect's proclamation, which has already been published.

The Moniteur also Contains the following Arret:

EXTRACT

From the Register of the Deliberations of the Consuls of the Republic.

PARIS, 24th Fructidor, Year 10 of the Republic one and indivisible.

The Consuls of the Republic, on the report of the Marine and Colonies, decree as follows:

Louisiana shall be governed by three magistrates; viz. a Capt. General, a Colonial Prefect, and a Commissary of Justice.

TITLE I.

Of the Captain General.

Art. 1. The Captain General has under his immediate order the land and marine forces, the national guards, and the gendarmerie. He is exclusively charged with the internal and external defence of Louisiana.

2. He provides, provisionally, for every military employment, according to the order of gradual advance, as high as chief of battalion or squadron, exclusively and proposes to the ministers all the changes to be made in the superior grades.

3. He delivers all passports at Louisiana. He ordains every thing relative to military subjects. He communicates, in behalf of the colony, with the governments of neutral countries, allies and enemies, on the continent of America, and in the Antilles.

He determines and ordains every year, with the Colonial Prefect, the necessary works and repairs of fortification, the opening of new roads or communications with old ones. He decrees, in conjunction with the Prefect, the state of all the expences to be incurred in the course of the year, conformably to public exigencies to be forwarded to the Minister with a sketch of the receipts necessary to defray the same. He exercises, in short, all the power heretofore attributed to the Governors General of colonies, saving always the exceptions in the present arret.

4. The Captain General cannot infringe directly nor indirectly the functions of the Colonial Prefect, of the Commissary of Justice, nor of the Tribunals; but he is at full liberty to exact from them every intelligence he shall deem necessary to demand, and which they shall be obliged to furnish, with respect to every department of public service whatsoever.

5. He can moreover, in case of urgent necessity, and on his own responsibility, supercede in whole or part the execution of the laws and regulations, after having on all occasions deliberated with the Colonial Prefect or the Commissary of Justice, according to the nature of the object, without being prevented by their opinion to the contrary: for this purpose he shall keep a register of deliberations in which the motive shall be transcribed and signed, a copy of which shall be immediately forwarded to the Minister.

6. Every three months a formal duplicate of all the deliberations held in common shall be likewise addressed to the Minister.

7. The power of granting the vacant lands of Louisiana belongs to the Captain General, in concurrence with the Colonial Prefect, conforming to the established regulations, in case of a difference of sentiment, the voice of the Captain General shall preponderate, the whole subject to the approbation of government.

8. The Captain General nominates, after the delay of ten days, ad interim, to all vacancies in all parts of the administration and of the judiciary order, on the respective presentations of the Colonial Prefect of the Commissary of Justice, each as concerns himself. This presentation refers only to places to which government nominates directly in France, and not to inferior employments.

9. All the nominations thus made by the Captain General in the military department, in the administration and judiciary orders, shall not be definitive until confirmed by the first consul.

10. No place in the different departments of the service can be created but by a decree of the Consuls.

11. All commands, orders and proclamations, emanating from the immediate authority of the Captain General, shall always be prefaced with these words: In the name of the French Republic.

12. The Captain General, in case of death or absence out of the colony, shall ad interim, be replaced by the Colonial Prefect. In case both are at the same time absent, the second General Commandant in Louisiana shall have the authority of Capt. General.

TITLE II.

Of the Colonial Prefect.

Art. 13. The Colonial Prefect, has under his directions the administration of the finances, the general accounts, and the destination of the officers of the administration of Louisiana.

14. The Colonial Prefect is exclusively charged in Louisiana, with the civil administration and the superior Police of the Colony; with all that comprehends the levy of contribution, receipts, expences, accounts, customs, the pay and maintenance of the troops, the appointment of different establishments, magazines, supplies, consumptions, leases and rents, sales and purchases, hospitals, baths, salaries of workmen, public labours, ferriers and ferry boats, national domains, affairs concerning emigrants, the distribution of waters, maritime inscriptions, the police of navigation, agriculture and commerce, verification of goods, suppression of contraband trade, division of prizes, the marine invalids, the government of blacks public instruction, public worship, priviledges of the press; and generally what has heretofore been attributed to the Intendants or magistrates in particular, or that has been assigned to them in common with the Governor General; so far, nevertheless, as is not derogatory to the present Arret.

15. The Accountants and all the civil employments of the Administration, are under the orders of the Colonial Prefect of Louisiana.

16. The officers of administration exercise, under his authority, the functions of sub prefects and Commissaries, of the marine and war, in the departments (arrondissements) of the colony assigned to them.

17. With regard to the assessment of the contributions which shall be levied by the government, the Prefect cannot proceed therein, until after having consulted the principal inhabitants and three principal merchants of the colony, who, nevertheless, shall only have a deliberative voice. A proces-verbal of the opinion shall be prepared to be forwarded to the minister.

18. The Colonial Prefect, the Sub-Prefects, and heads of administration, may require the military force (gendarmie)—to execute their mandates; indeed, more ample force if necessary, which cannot be refused.

TITLE III.

Of the Commissary of Justice.

23. The Commissary of Justice shall have the superintendance of the tribunals of Louisiana and that of the ministerial officers established by them: he shall take care that strict account of their proceedings be rendered to him by the Presidents of the Tribunals, and by the Commissaries of Government.

24. He shall exercise the greatest care towards a prompt distribution of justice, as well in civil as criminal cases; he shall likewise provide for the safety and salubrity of the public prisons.

25. He shall preside in the tribunals whenever he may think proper, and shall have a deliberative voice.

26. He shall direct the safe keeping of the records and deposits of the civil acts, and superintend the execution of the laws, tariffs and regulations. He shall receive all claims respecting the administration of justice, and give the necessary consequential orders.

27. Within the first fifteen days of every month, he shall cause to be made out a statement inspected by the President of each tribunal, and signed by the clerk, as well of the proceedings adjudged in the preceding month, as of those still undecided and in train of process, to be remitted to the Captain General, who is to render an account thereof to the minister.

28. The Commissary of Justice has alone the right to make provisional regulations on the subject of process, without departing from the laws, and to publish the said regulations under the forms prescribed in the 11th article of Title 1st, when they shall have been assented to by the Captain General. He shall have them registered in the offices of the tribunals, by his own authority.

29. The agents of government cannot be prosecuted for faults committed in their functions, without the previous authority of the Commissary of Justice.

30. No citizen not attached to public service, can be arrested extra judicially, but by a Visa of the Commissary of Justice; who shall render an account thereof to the Minister.

31. The Commissary [illegible] prepare such laws as he [illegible] adapted to compose the [illegible] criminal code of the colon[illegible] His plans shall be com[illegible] Captain General, and [illegible] Minister, with the p[illegible] their deliberations and [illegible] tions.

PHILADELPHIA, May 16.

Yesterday arrived ship Cornelia, Capt. M'Collom, from Bristol, which he left the 23d of March and King Road the 6th of April; he has furnished us with a file of papers to the 31st March, but they contain nothing later than we before received. He informs he saw a London Paper of the 3d of April, it contained accounts of great preparations for War, but nothing more decisive than we already have.

From New-Orleans, April 5, 1803.

"Since the arrival of the Prefect, he has been constantly occupied in making preparations for the reception of the troops, respecting whom we have had no late news. By a vessel from Glasgow it has been rumored, that the English had protested against the sailing of the fleet. A similar report has reached us from Spain, via Havanna. It has afforded great satisfaction to the friends of the Spanish government. So much are they opposed to the cession, that even the prospect of the event, being procrastinated, excites exultation. But we fear all will not avail. The imbecility of the American administration has inevitably fixed the destiny of this country.

There arrived here a few days ago, an express from Washington, addressed to the French Commandants under cover to the American Vice Consul, who has delivered it to the prefect. The object of it is a mistery. The Prefect however openly declares, that as soon as they obtain regular possession of the colony, the depot will be opened. This act of courtesy, will no doubt, be a sufficient satisfaction to the American Administration, and effectually wipe off the impression of the injuries and insults which have been offered to the dignity, independence and interests of the country!"

[A Dominique paper of the 23d April, contains the following paragraph]

"By accounts from Guadaloupe we learn, that a plot has been discovered, which had for its object, the arrest of the captain general, Lacrosse, and prefect Lescallier, whom it was intended were to be embarked for France. Several persons were arrested in consequence; and among the number is the commander of the forces, Menard, and Mons. Clair-fountain. They were both immediately put on board a vessel bound to France.

Extract of a letter dated in Rome, in December last.

"You can have no idea of the price of bread in Italy, and the wretchedness of the poor occasioned by it; all the crops here and in Naples, and particularly Sicily, have failed, and grain must be very high next year in Europe; I, therefore, send you this intelligence, the truth of which I see every minute. The state of Europe is extremely unsettled. You must see by the king of Great Britain's speech how uncertain he considers every thing; in fact, all the great powers of Europe keep armed and ready for war, and all are now courting Russia, who appears at this moment to hold, as it were, the scales of peace and war in her hands."

The concession of the king of Spain respecting the American right of deposit at New Orleans, may be considered as a further prognostic of war in Europe. That the interruption of that right originated in his Majesty's councils in Europe, every one must be convinced when he knows any thing of the Spanish government, which allows to its officers less discretionary power, and exercises over their conduct more severe vigilance and rigid despotism than any government in Europe. If the Intendant acted merely upon his own caprice, we will certainly see him at least removed, if not very severely punished: But he was not mad enough to act so. Having got rid of England by the peace, his majesty of Spain, and his majesty's sovereign lord and master the Corsican, thought they might amuse themselves for a while with America. And truly for the short time they had to work in, they have made a tolerable hand of it, if brow beating, nose tweaking and disgracing this country was their object. Unluckily for them however, just as things were going on swimmingly, just as we were melting meretriciously into their arms upon the down of the negociation, the British lion gave a roar; they sprung up in a hurry, and by a concession which we do not hear contains a word about reparation for the injury actually done (we say nothing of the insult, for insult is nothing to philosophers) they disengage themselve from America in order to turn their faces to Britain, and leave us and our government alone for the present.

But let our rulers remember, or if they will not, the people holla in their ears till the callous drums of them are cracked, that what was done in 1803, may be done in 1804, '5, or 1810. And that the motives will be then as strong, perhaps stronger than they were lately, to withdraw that right, when a more established peace in Europe shall enable them to act with more vigor, and to greater effect. In the mean time the administration may sing Io Pæans, and bless fortune which has prevented or at least postponed their disgrace.

To secure this country from any thing of the kind for the future—and to bid defiance to their worst machinations, our government ought to buy at any imaginable price the two Floridas. And here the war between England and France will serve them, and probable be the means of inducing the court of Spain to give them what they so dearly like—a lumping penny'orth. For it is not to be doubted that England may get possession of them both with an armament, which compared with her means would be considered as nothing. Spain knows this and will therefore probably be glad to get the Americans into it.

The mischiefs which were to be looked to more than any other with horror, we mean the intended policy of France to deluge Louisiana with the enemies she is now contending against in St. Domingo, will it is to be hoped, be completely and for ever frustrated by the war, if it really takes place, between France and England. America may consider it as a fortunate escape, and say each to the other, in the words of one of Shakespeare's comic characters:

"Here is a purr of fortunate's, Sir, or of fortunate's cat."

(Char. Cour.)

Extract of a letter received by a respectable mercantile house in N. York, from their correspondent at Bordeaux, dated 26th March.

"The fear of a war renewing between this country and England, caused prices to rise since these few days past. We do not believe such will immediately result: if, however, the event should come about, prices of West India produce, will result in like manner as during the last war, tho' now encouragement is rather to be expected, because our West India Islands are not by far in such a flourishing situation as at that time. At all events the produce of our country fit for this quarter, will command ready sales; and should a war break out, those who ship to this port would have a double chance of benefit. Rice is not abundant here, yet we must fix the price at about 30 or 40 francs per cwt. when the new rice comes to market. Pot ashes do not answer. Tobacco is the chief article, of which we have a good stock on hand, hence prices do not rise. Cotton, Georgia long and short staple is now getting into favor among our manufacturers; this is prejudicial to the sale of Louisiana cotton. Carolina Indigo is esteemed in like manner, as we have no supplies from St. Domingo, and from New Orleans little or nothing. Logwood is very scarce and much in demand. Sugars sell briskly. Coffee in continued demand, and much speculated upon. Pepper, India muslins, and nankeens, sell currently according to quality. Though our brandies are at present in demand, we are of opinion they will not rise or vary much, until the good or bad prospects of our vintage be known."
